Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

The Work Done in Seattle on Friday and Saturday--Valuable Suggestions.

An Interesting and Profitable Meeting--The Great Objects of the Association.

[From our own Correspondent.]

The Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of the coast assembled at Seattle on Thursday last. The following delegates were present:

Seattle—G Carter, General Secretary; J R Denny, E C Kilbourne, J B Eggleson, Professor Geddes, Rev H L Bates, Rev Clark Davis, Everett Smith, Rev Elliott Brown, W G Dickinson, T Bremgan, R C Graves, Anson Burwell and Austin Burwell. Spokane Falls—Fulmore Tanner, General Secretary; Rev R B Swift, Rev G W Sloan, A G Hassell, J Hoesong and C R Haring. New Westminster, B C—J C Cunningham and E C Rand. The Dalles—N C Wilson. Whitman College—F W Cole. Centralia—George Baeder. California—C S Mason, State Secretary, and Noel H Jacks. Port Townsend—C F Harper, A Thompson, I Lockhart, W F Leonard. Washington, D C—Thos C Harding. Tacoma—A F Palmer, F H Terry, S T Bimmock, General Secretary; L T Root, G W Thompson, J Bushell, C F Leonard and S H Rouse. Astoria—S M Hauser, General Secretary; J T Ross, J S O'Brien, E Jensen and A H Fricke. Portland—W L Walpole, General Secretary; C L Fay, E C Frost, C F Seal, J Gwilt, W H Jones, P Messick, Rev I D Driver, W Wadhams, C W Wentworth and L E Hibbard. Vancouver, B C—G A Charnock, General Secretary; J Rogers, C Gray, J H Harrison, R J Grant, D G McDonald, T K Dryden, R V Palmer, H H Morgan and Messrs. Lapoint and Bunting. Victoria, B C—F W Teague, General Secretary; R W Roper and E J Dee.

Prayer and song were engaged in for a short time, after which the meeting was called to order and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Austin Burwell, of Seattle, was elected President; G W Thompson, of Tacoma, and E C Frost, of Portland, Vice-Presidents; and Fillmore Tanner, of Spokane Falls, was declared Secretary.

In the absence of Mr. Burwell, E. C. Frost, of Portland, presided over the meeting.

The reports of the various Associations were then presented giving the membership and the progress of the work at each place mentioned. Port Townsend had 43 members; East Portland 63, Spokane Falls 130, Centralia 38, Astoria 94, Victoria, B. C., 116; New Westminster, B.C., 120; Portland 355, Seattle 300, Tacoma 140, Vancouver 70. Other Associations were to report later on.

At the evening session Rev. Mr. Davis delivered a brief address from Samuel 1, 21st chap., 9th verse. Prayers, hymns, and expressions of earnestness were then engaged in, which awakened much enthusiasm. At this juncture three young men arose and pronounced their conversion. Dr. Reid of Portland made an eloquent address which occupied the remainder of the evening session.

On Friday morning the Convention was opened by Bible reading by Theodore A. Harding, of Washington, D. C. General Secretary Tanner, of Spokane Falls, read a paper on "The Definite Work of the Y. M. C. A." He endeavored to show that the work in the Y. M. C. A., should be for young men, and did not approve of a mixed membership. He claimed that young men by themselves would be encouraged and stimulated into more active work. Allowing ladies and elderly men to become members would make the young men timid and they would not have so much confidence and zeal as would naturally arise through self-dependence.

The reading of secretary Tanner's papers evoked a general discussion in which C. S. Mason, state secretary of California and Rev. J. D. Driver of Portland took a prominent part.

J. H. Rouse, of Tacoma, read a paper on Association Reading Rooms and their management. Mr. Rouse treated the subject in a clear and able manner.

Among the general remarks that followed the reading of this paper, it was observed by one of the secretaries, "that he would rather do without an organ for the entire year than good literature in the reading room." Among the many ways shown by which the difficulty of procuring reading material may be overcome, one was for monthly collections for this purpose.

The "tramp" question was discussed and it was decided to exclude men of this class from the rooms because of their uncouth appearance and general bad habits which would deter many young men from visiting the reading rooms.

The following committees were then appointed:

Committee on Business—F W Teague, of Victoria, Chairman; A E Rand of New Westminster, and E C Kilbourne, of Seattle.

Committee on Devotion—E G Wheeler of Portland, Chairman; J R Stewart of Seattle, and N Wilson of The Dalles.

Committee on Resolutions—S M Hauser of Portland, Chairman; M Cole of Walla Walla and R C Graves.

Committee on Executive Committee Reports—S T Dimick of Tacoma, Chairman; A E Rand of New Westminster and C F Seal.

Noel Jacks of San Francisco read a paper on "Social Work" which is considered one of the most important features of the Y.M.C.A. The amusements connected with every association are methods to the end that it may influence young men to a better life. The reader said that there should be a reception committee and at least one of the committees should be at the rooms every evening to extend a cordial greeting to strangers.

The next part of the programme was the opening of the question box. The answers drawn forth were interesting and entertaining.

At the afternoon session Mr. G. A. Charnock, of Vancouver, B. C, read an article on "Personal Work, Value and Methods," and stated that the great secret of personal work was love. A discussion followed regarding the class of men to be invited to the gospel services, the majority of the speakers expressing an opinion that no distinction should be made except those intoxicated or of bad odor.

Mr. F. W. Cole, of Whitman college gave an account of college work, its needs and methods.

The afternoon session concluded by an excellent lecture on "Workers' Training Class," by George Carter, of Seattle, which was greatly appreciated by those present. He illustrated his ideas by the use of chalk and blackboard, and those who had not seen the Bible illustrations in that way were refreshed by the energetic thoughts of the general secretary of our Y. M. C. A.

The convention adjourned at 5 p. m.

THE EVENING SESSION.

The Methodist Protestant church was well filled last evening, and the proceedings commenced with praise song service led by Mr. Wm. Wadhams of Portland. Mr. Dickenson acted as organist. Mr. C. S. Mason, state secretary of California, delivered an earnest and eloquent appeal on the importance of a building. He spoke of the advantages of having a building, how it increases the moral welfare of a city and has a commercial value in the cities of the Northwest. He gave incidents of people who, when they found the good the Young Men's Christian Association was doing, gave handsome subscriptions to carry on the work. It is imperative that the headquarters in every city should be in a building made for the purpose, as rooms are needed for committees, gymnasium, baths, etc, and if an association is cramped for room, the work is retarded. The speaker appealed to the people of Seattle to do their duty and erect a fine building upon the lot so readily subscribed for.

BIBLICAL LECTURE.

The treat of the evening was the biblical lecture of Rev. I. D. Driver of Oregon, who spoke on the existence of God and natural necessity of a revelation from Him. He demonstrated that the Bible was a revelation from Him. Motion, matter and thought were either eternal or created; if the former, then there is an eternal thinking being; if the latter, there is a personal creator, and either one is God. There must be a supreme intelligent being, or else how do we possess intelligence. Whatever else God could make He could not make himself, for this would make him act before he existed. He refuted Paine, Ingersoll, and all skeptics who offered their own interpretations that God is not the author of the Bible. He stated that the constitution of the United States was founded upon the laws in the Bible. The lecture was listened to with great attention and the various points were loudly cheered. At 9:45 the convention adjourned until Saturday at 9 a. m. The evening session was held in the Methodist Protestant Church at 7:30.

DELTA NEWS.

Enormous Yield of Crops—A Veritable Boom—Fishing Season.

Delta, Sept. 18—The weather still continues fine and the grain is nearly all harvested. The past month has averaged below one shower a week, thus affording farmers a good opportunity to secure the crop in good order. The average yield of hay was about 2½ tons to the acre, though there were many farmers who cut 3½ and 4 tons, and one or two who have cut the third crop of clover from the same field averaging about three tons to the acre each cutting. The chief grain crop is oats, which yields from 50 to 125 bushels per acre, owing to the damage done by winds and grasshoppers. There were several fine fields of wheat which have been thrashed, showing a yield of from 60 to 80 bushels per acre. The potato crop is about half harvested, and shows a yield of about 8 tons to the acre. Several farmers have from 3 to 4 acres of onions which will produce about 10 tons to the acre. There is not much demand yet and prices are in consequence rather low. Oats are $24, wheat $25, potatoes $15, hay $14, onions $20, but the farmers propose holding till the prices advance.

The prospects are good for a railroad through this locality, the C. P. R. having offered to build the bridges and construct dykes, opening the municipality, hand over the $20,000 voted for that purpose some time since. An era of prosperity has at least dawned upon this favored locality and the price of land is bounding upwards and in many cases has already reached from $100 to $125 per acre on the river front. There is considerable of wild prairie land however, that can be bought for $40 and $50 per acre, but it will not long remain at that low figure.

The fishing season is about over, although a few boats still continue to capture a few of the late arrivals. Great complaints are made of the indiscreet practice of so many boats fishing outside the river mouth as to frighten the fish away and prevent them entering the river, their natural spawning grounds. As a proof of this a large run of sockeyes returned about a week after the boats had left the field bearing marks of a rough trip up the coast, mainly searching for a haven of rest.

A TOUCHING COMPLAINT.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—The city is certainly much in need of a place where the sick and the afflicted will be cared for. That "charity is cold" is an old proverb as true to-day as when it was written and none more so than the charity of our hospitals. To-day a poor man who has a family of four without a mother to care for them, applied to have one of the children sick with scarlet fever, admitted into either the French or St. Joseph's hospital. Both refused. The consequence is that the sick child is placed under such care as could be obtained, almost everyone being afraid to give it shelter out of fear for their own families. What is wanted, in my opinion, is a hospital which will afford relief to those who need it.

One Who Knows.

SUPREME COURT PROCEDURE.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—If the new rules contain the innovations that I am told of it is to be hoped they will not become law, unless after careful revision, and amendment. Court procedure affects public rights, and interests, much more seriously than would be supposed by any citizen who has not been

A Litigant.

A Bad Dog.

A gentleman of this city is the owner of a black cocker spaniel which has a habit of going to the country on Sundays to hunt for cock pheasants. The dog captured a fine bird yesterday, all by himself, and brought it home. The owner is greatly distressed over the fact that the dog will only hunt on Sundays, and wonders greatly thereat. It is probable, he thinks, that like Poe's raven in its croaking of "nevermore," it caught the trick from a former "unhappy master," and is now so confirmed in the habit that it practices it from choice. A parrot educated by sailors would not be more out of place in a lady's boudoir, than is this terrible dog in the home of a strict Sabbatarian.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

Death of the Famous Marshal Bazaine--King Humbert Seriously Ill.

Shot from the Sage Brush---Accidents and Suicides---German Politics.

St. Antonio, Texas, Sept. 24.—Ten men stopped the east bound passenger train of the Southern Pacific on Saturday night near Harwood. The authorities had been warned and armed men had been placed in the mail and express cars. The bandits ordered the car to be run two miles and then the fight began. The robbers used Engineer Dan Toomey to draw the fire from the mail car and the shots of the officers killed him. Finally the robbers were obliged to retreat with two of their number wounded. The officers are in pursuit with blood-hounds.

RANCHER SHOT.

Barstow, Cala., Sept 24—While Frank Smith and George Jones, ranchers, were walking through the sage brush about 10 miles south of here last night, Jones was shot dead by some one concealed in the brush. The cause of the murder was unknown. The murderer is still at large.

YELLOW FEVER.

Washington, Sept. 24—There were two new cases but no deaths from yellow fever, at Decatur, Ala., yesterday. At Memphis confidence is restored but business is virtually at a standstill. One case has developed at Louisville, Ken. Jacksonville's new cases aggregated 133 and ten deaths. A more hopeful feeling exists there. The Board of Health of Meridian, Miss., has ordered all trains stopped.

Washington, Sept. 24—A bill, making an appropriation for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers, is likely to be reported from the appropriation committee to house this week, and the effort to secure a consideration for it will doubtless result in some lively proceedings, as the opposition, though confined to one or two men, is very determined.

DENIED SIBERIA.

Brussels, Sept. 24.—The Nord, referring to the suspicion that the Chinese are prospecting in Siberia and seeking there an opening for immigration, instead of in America and Australia, says, that Russia would not allow Chinese immigration to Siberia.

A BODY IN A BOX.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—A large box arrived here yesterday from Warsaw. The address was insufficient, and the box was opened and found to contain the body of a lady attired in a costly dress, with a profusion of lace and jewels. The woman had been strangled to death. It is suspected she was murdered by Nihilists.

YACHTING ACCIDENT.

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 24—A yacht containing six men capsized during a gale yesterday and five drowned.

PRESIDENT SOLOMAN DYING.

Paris, Sept. 24—General Soloman, ex-President of Hayti, is dying. The last sacrament has been administered.

THE WHITECHAPEL METHOD.

London, Sept. 25—A young woman has been murdered near Gateshead, exactly after the Whitechapel method. The body was discovered in the street.

CHEQUE FOR $1,480 LOST OR STOLEN.

New York, Sept. 24—An alarm was sent out from police headquarters to-day warning the banks to stop payment of a check for $1,480 drawn by D. D. Withers to the order of George Hearst, California's Senator and endorsed by him. Both are prominent horsemen and the check which represented the balance of a trade between them was either lost or stolen.

THE SCOURGE AT JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 24—Up to noon 32 new cases and 4 deaths reported. This makes the total number of deaths since 6th July, 216. The weather to-day was raw and chilly with cold rain, making the outlook for the sick very discouraging.

GERMAN COLONIZATION.

Zanzibar, Sept. 24—A conflict arose between German residents and coast tribes at Bayomoyo yesterday. The German Admiral landed with forces from the Leipsic to assist the Germans and killed 150 men without suffering a single casualty. The rebels are declaring against all Europeans and a general uprising is feared.

ASSIGNED.

Portland, Or., Sept. 24—E. Meyer & Co., dealers in general merchandise, have assigned for the benefit of their creditors. There are four attachment suits against the firm aggregating thirty-seven thousand two hundred dollars.

TWO PERSONS ASPHYXIATED.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 24—Patrick Lynch and Nelly Driscoll, were found asphyxiated this morning in Willow house where they registered at midnight as man and wife. The gas had evidently been blown out as it was turned fully on.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Liverpool, Sept. 24—Wheat quiet and steady; California, 7s 6½d.

APOCRYPHAL.

Berlin, Sept. 24—Bismarck expressed the opinion that the alleged abstract of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick, published in the Deutsch Reundschau, last week, is apocryphal. This view of the Chancellor is given after he had carefully examined the matter published in the Deutsch Reundschau, and was in response to a definite question as to his idea of the authenticity of the alleged abstract. It is declared that the alleged abstract from Frederick's diary is published without William's knowledge.

A BIG TIME.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 24—The centennial anniversary of Allegheny country is being celebrated. It was ushered in with booming cannon, firemen's parade and the dedication of a two and a half million dollar court house. The celebration will last three days. There will be a trade's display to-morrow and a military and G. A. R. parade on Wednesday. Fireworks and natural gas displays on the river every night. Ex-President Hayes is among the visitors.

MURDER AND ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Chicago, Sept. 24—Walter Johnson, 34 years of age, who has been employed at the Rock Island car shops, rushed into the kitchen at his home this morning, snatched a butcher knife and made a plunge at his mother aged 63, and buried the knife in the old lady's throat. He stabbed her again in the throat and she dropped to the floor. Johnson then ran to the woodshed and hanged himself. Officers cut him down and restored him to consciousness. The old lady will die. Johnson has been mentally unsound for a long time and was insane when he committed the dreadful crime.

RAILROAD CONDUCTORS THIEVING.

New York, Sept. 24—Several Wagner palace car conductors have been discharged during the past week and arrested. A systematic course of thieving, running into thousands of dollars, has been discovered.

BAZAINE DEAD.

Madrid, Sept. 24—Marshal Bazaine is dead.

Francois Achille Bazaine, Marshal of France, was 77 years of age at his decease, being born in 1811. Educated at the celebrated military school, the Ecole Polytechnique, he entered the army of the Bourbons in '31. His early service was in the Algeria country, where he distinguished himself, receiving the much coveted cross of the Legion of Honor on the field. During the Carlist war in Spain, in the year 1837, he served against the upsar, returning again to Algeria. On the outbreak of the war in the east in 1853, he was given the command of a brigade, and was often the recipient of despatch compliments from Marshals Canrobert and Pelissier. He received the command of a division on the Kinburn expedition in 1855, and commanded the French expedition to Mexico in 1863; was created a Marshal of France in 1864, and to the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor the same year. His career in Mexico was successful till the unfortunate misunderstanding with the Emperor Maximilian. In Sept. 1866, finding the maintainance of the Empire impossible he prepared to evacuate Mexico and leaving Maximilian to his fate he set sail from Vera Cruz with his forces on the 12th March, 1867. Nominated to command of the Imperial Guard in 1869, and also that of the 3rd Army corps. During the early part of the war with Germany the deceased marshal took a conspicuous part. On the capitulation of Sedan he retired to Metz, holding out against the German forces for seven weeks. However, the unheard of surrender of an army consisting of 50 generals, 6000 officers and 173,000 men caused the National Assembly Military Commission to bring serious charges against the deceased. He was tried for treason to France and dereliction of duty and sentenced to death, which was commuted to imprisonment for life. He was confined at the Ile Sainte Margurite, south of France. He effected his escape on the night of the 9th of Aug., 1874. After residing for some time in England and Italy, the deceased Marshal finally took up his abode in Madrid, where he died yesterday, an exile and in a dishonored old age.

PLANING MILL BURNED.

Moscow, Ida, Sept. 24.—The sash door and planing mill of W. D. Robbins was destroyed by fire yesterday. It is supposed the origin of the fire was a hot box on top of the building. Loss $10,000; insured for $4,000. The property was in litigation.

HIGHER MARKET.

San Francisco, Sept. 24—Higher eastern markets and lower freights sent the local market booming this morning, and options closed two and three cents over Saturday's closing prices.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.

The Supreme Court to-day refused to grant a new trial to Long Sing, the Chinaman sentenced to death for murdering a countryman named Ching On, on March 30, 1887.

CLEVELAND'S MOVEMENTS.

Norristown, Pa., Sept. 24—President Cleveland left for Washington this morning.

KING HUMBERT ILL.

Rome, Sept. 24.—King Humbert is ill, caused by a disordered liver. He has had several fainting fits and his appetite is failing.

TO DEFEAT THE COTTON RING.

London, Sept. 24.—A million spindles in Lancashire mills commenced running to-day on short time, the object being to defeat the American cotton ring.

BATAVIA ARRIVES.

San Francisco, Sept. 24—The Canadian Pacific Steamer Batavia arrived from China and Japan this morning viz Vancouver with 393 Chinese.

FROM THE ROYAL CITY.

Bark Nanaimo Arrives--Improvements to the Fraser Channel.

Special to The Times.

New Westminster, Sept. 24—The bark Nanaimo, Capt. Newby, arrived yesterday, in tow of the steamer Belle, and was moored at the B. C. P. Mill's wharf. She will take a cargo of 450,000 feet of lumber for Melbourne, Aus.

Gilley Bros., have commenced work in connection with the channel improvements at the mouth of the Fraser.

A. H. Hill, C. E., went down with the steamer Samson to-day to make an examination of the channel before laying the mattresses.

The citizens have petitioned the Mayor and aldermen for a civic holiday, with the suggestion that it be on October 4th in order to give then an opportunity to attend the Scotch gathering that takes place on that day. The date will be fixed to-night.

Yesterday Afternoon's Meeting.

A gospel temperance meeting held in the Victoria Theatre yesterday afternoon was largely attended. Rev. D. Fraser occupied the chair. Stirring addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Sutherland and Mr. J. J. McLaren, Q. C., of Toronto, who urged the necessity of organization upon temperance workers and temperance sympathisers. Mr. McLaren comparing Toronto with Victoria said if that city had the same proportion of liquor houses as we have here, instead of Toronto having 150 she would have between 600 and 700. If the proportion was the same in Victoria as in Toronto we would have only 15. Comparing the consumption of liquors in B. C. with P. E. Island, he pointed that while it was three quarts per head per annum in the latter, it was between seven and eight gallons per head in the former. The address was very attentively listened to. The meeting closed with the benediction.

Steamer Umatilla.

Much uneasiness is felt at the non-arrival of the steamer Umatilla. During her voyage at this season of the year much fog is encountered outside Golden Gate, and it is supposed that the vessel is delayed on that account.

Dangerously Ill.

We deeply regret to learn that Alex. Allen (of Welch, Bithet & Co.'s) is dangerously ill from congestion of the lungs.

CATTLE KILLING.

It is a strange coincidence that the perversity of our morning contemporary and his ability to misrepresent the truth is always more marked in the Sunday paper than in any issue during the week. The TIMES did not say that the judgment of the learned judge in the case of HODGSON vs. the E. & N. R. was "all wrong," far from it. What an effort was made to point out was that if the railway line was not fenced it should have been; that it was the duty of the company to keep the track clear of animals just as they would keep it clear of boulders, landslides or other obstructions dangerous to the traveling public. The palaver about Mr. HODGSON being "morally, if not legally responsible, had the presence of the ox on the track caused the destruction of the train and the loss of life," is nonsense. Surely every man who has a cow running at large is not morally responsible to the traveling public for its safe transfer over the railway. Surely the moral and civil law is not all against the man with the cow and all in favor of the man with the railway. If so, the moral and civil codes need revising. It does not need any argument to prove that the protection of travellers must not be left in the hands of the cow-owning public. On the other hand the railway company must assume the responsibility of keeping the track clear. If ox or cow is killed on the track it is prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of the company and they should be called upon to pay damages accordingly. As the law stands none will, we presume, question the ruling of Mr. Justice Gray, but in view of the fact that the railway line was not fenced in the vicinity in which Hodgson's ox was killed, it appears as if the owner might well have been recompensed for his loss. As for the course of the Colonist in this matter its reputation as a lowly fully explains it. Let us be permitted to paraphrase a sacred proverb to make the truth more evident. "The Colonist knows its owner, and the editor his master's crib."

OUR PEOPLE.

A Toronto contemporary, after watching the people at the fairs, is inspired with great hope for the future. No country in the world can produce the crowds that visit the agricultural exhibitions of the Dominion, especially the county shows of Ontario. There may be larger crowds, and more wealthy people at exhibitions in the old and the new worlds, but nowhere else can the same evidences of intelligence and prosperity be witnessed among the masses. There is nowhere fewer poor, and nowhere is their a higher average of people enjoying the reward of industry in freedom to work hard for a good living. A sight of the populace at such times inspires one with faith in the future of Canada. The secret of a nation's greatness is in the character of its citizens, and a country peopled by men and women such as toil in Canadian town and township is not without hope.

RETALIATION IN 1809.

The retaliation message of President GRANT in 1870 was fortunately followed by the Washington treaty, and there was not at that time any disastrous results from the Chinese policy of exclusion which that great country seems to have adopted when grave and important questions are to be solved. The experiment was tried in 1809, when exclusion was embodied in an Act of Congress, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the passage of this act the entrance of the harbors and waters of the United States and of the territories thereof be, and the same is hereby, interdicted to all public ships belonging to Great Britain or France, excepting vessels only which may be forced in by distress, or which are charged with despatches or business from the government to which they belong, and also packets having no cargoes or merchandise on board. And if any public ship or vessel as aforesaid, not being included in the section above mentioned, shall enter any harbors or waters within the jurisdiction of the United States or of the territories, it shall be lawful for the president of the United States, or such other person as he shall have empowered for that purpose, to employ any part of the land and naval forces, or of the militia of the United States or the territories thereof, to compel such ship or vessel to depart.

This attempt at retaliation was followed by the war of 1812-14, and it was after the conclusion of peace that President MADISON was induced to renounce forever all claim to the Canadian inshore fisheries, which claim had before been vigorously pressed by the United States. Retaliation is therefore not a new thing in American diplomacy, nor does it always accomplish the object it has in view.

RATHER MIXED.

"If, for instance, a C. P. R. train had killed Hodgson's animal, Mr. Justice Gray's decision would have been hailed as that of a modern Solomon. But as it was an engine of the E. & N. Co. (with whom our contemporary has a quarrel, on account of a monthly advertisement withdrawn and a subscription stopped) that made hash of the ox, the judgment in his opinion is all wrong."—Sunday Colonist.

The TIMES has had no quarrel with an "engine of the E. & N. Co." No "engine" so far as we know has withdrawn a "monthly advertisement" or stopped a "subscription." If our blundering contemporary had substituted "president" for "engine" THE TIMES might have felt justified in publishing a brief account of a scene which occurred in this office when the Legislature was sitting last winter. It had an important bearing on advertising, and the relation of it would have served to show up a would-be tyrant in his true light.

THE "SICK MAN OF THE EAST."

In a recent interview, said to have taken place between H. R. H. the Duke of Edinburgh, commanding the Mediterranean fleet, and the Sublime Porte, His Royal Highness is reported to have assured the Sultan of the protection of England and that he was there with the fleet to do so. Our Royal Family are very particular in expressing their views, and it is not all probable that the otherwise cautious commander of the Mediterranean fleet would have so far forgot his official position as to interfere with diplomatic affairs, especially at a time when the slightest indiscretion might lead to complications of a serious character. The "Sick man" on the shores of the Bosphorus, it is true, needs all the support England can give him, both morally and otherwise. When the Russians swarmed on to the Balkan peninsula and gained their long wished for desire of a view for the first time of the gilded domes and minarets of Saint Sophia, the British fleet appeared in the waters of the Golden Horn ready to drive back the northern invader should he attempt to touch the home of the Caliphs. The contemplated visit of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales to the principalities, the foment in Servia and Bosnia, taken in conjunction with the threatened Suez complications and the position of Russia on the banks of the Oxus, overshadowing our northern Indian frontier, may in a measure give credence to the supposed interview. Yet it is very seldom the routine of the Imperial Foreign Office is deviated from, and any message of encouragement to the "sick man," would be surely conveyed by the British ambassador as a physician in ordinary always in attendance. The Sublime Porte The great Napoleon said that with the capital of the Caliphs once in the hands of the Czar, civilized Europe would be placed open to the ravages of the Russian cossack hordes. With this prophecy before them, it is not likely the European powers will ever consent to a Russian occupation of Constantinople. The "sick man" may be removed but not to make room for the northern bear.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Winnipeg Free Press: "The Dominion Government has imposed a duty of twenty per cent. on huckleberries imported from the United States. Who says Canada cannot retaliate?"

Cardinal Manning (Catholic) says: "For 35 years I have been priest and Bishop in London, and now I approach my 80th year I have learned some lessons, and the first thing is this: The chief bar to the working of the Holy Spirit of God in the souls of men and women is intoxicating drink. I know no antagonist to that good Spirit more direct, more subtle, more stealthy, more ubiquitous, than intoxicating drink. Though I have known men and women destroyed for all manner and reasons, yet I know of no cause that affects man, woman, child and home with such universality of steady power as intoxicating drink."

The largest passenger terminus in London, Liverpool street, is to be enlarged, at a cost, for land alone, of $3,250,000. The extension will enable the number of trains to be increased from the present figure, 700 to about 1000 daily. The suburban trains will run faster, and it is believed that the increase in suburban passenger traffic will fully pay the interest on the capital outlay. The increased passenger receipts during the last ten years were $2,500,000, a large portion of which was due to workmen taking advantage of cheap tickets sold in packets at a reduced rate, and living in the suburbs and traveling to and fro every day to work in the city.

Discussing Senator Sherman's suggestions about annexation, the London Spectator says: Canada will dispose of her own destinies and can see no reason to believe that she purposes being absorbed in the great republic. It has always been a matter of surprise that the attraction of the mighty state by their side has been so small for Canadians. Were there a union of the Dominion and the United States no state on earth would have such a territory, such a position, such a potential resource for influencing the history of mankind. But apparently the Canadians would rather remain British than be freed from foreign troubles by becoming citizens of the United States. Moreover they think they have a third alternative. Why should they not be a nation with a history of their own? At present they are content, but if a change appears inevitable or if England should prove effete, Canadians will certainly try to become a nation.

OUR TOWN MAJOR.

Morality and Sewerage—Council Meeting—Agricultural Matters.

So the Colonist man is becoming an advocate of morality, although he prints his paper on Sunday. In yesterday's issue its readers are treated to a homily on "gambling," "sewers," and "missionary traders," all very good Sunday reading no doubt. What a marked change from a few months ago.

"R." writing to the Sunday issue of the Colonist, has the Major's entire approval regarding the $500,000 by-law for sewerage purposes. Pickering's plans were adopted by a former council, assisted by other citizens, and yet we have some of the present Board of Aldermen saying that they "know better than either Pickering or any of the city fathers at the time," and yet won't give the public their views on the matter.

We want the sewers as soon as possible; every one acknowledges that. The cry now is, "let us have every improvement, but how can we? If we vote money to the council they will make away with it; the James Bay bridge is an example" and such like talk. Formerly the cry was, "oh! the present state of things answered for us when we were young, and surely they ought to do now." This latter is the old moss back talk; there is a little of it left yet. In order to gain the confidence of the people, we must have men in whom the people can place that confidence. This "go-as-you-please" style, as "R" says, won't answer. The only way to overcome the difficulty is by having a Board of Commissioners especially appointed from amongst our leading men of business. This was advocated by the Major long ago, and is the only plan. Other cities have their special boards appointed to carry out a special object. In the old country the parliamentary board of works oversees all expenditures for municipal improvements undertaken to be paid for by the ratepayers. Even the salaries of the officials are regulated by this board, and no increase of pay or allowance, is permitted till sanctioned by them. This is the only plan by which municipal improvements can be carried out here in Victoria. There are so many crows to pluck that there wouldn't be a feather left for the ratepayers by the time the wire-pullers had their handful.

Under all circumstances, the question of sewerage had better be laid over till the approaching municipal elections, when plans and suggestions in the interest of the people on the sewerage and other questions, would from pretty good planks in the several platforms.

The next meeting of the council is anxiously looked forward to by a great many. A full house is expected, as it is thought Alderman Braden will be enabled to take his seat again and also put in his oar in the discussion of the questions before that body. It is thought that the Aldermen will make up for lost time. The year is near its close, and the council should place its house in order. The accounts, taxes collected and other matters should be gone into and not left to the last moment. There will be a lively time and no mistake.

To judge from the lithograph placard posted up all over, our Agricultural Exhibition will be a grand affair. The Major sees that the erection of buildings, etc., is about being commenced. When will the building shown on the picture like a Chinese pagoda be put up? It is a fine looking building on paper. The placard is a splendid specimen of typographical art, but like the circus pictures what is depicted there is never seen inside the show. The Major looked in vain for the "st babies" contending for Mr. D. W. Higgins prize of $10, with the genial D. W. smiling blandly on the success of the dodge. Sam Slick demonstrated that the way to a woman's heart was thro' her baby, and the member for Estaunswill had to kiss so many urchins whose faces were washed for the occasion. History you see repeats itself. The Senator for Squimalt is wise in his generation.

The show has his good wishes for success. He would like to have seen the "pet stock" kept apart from agriculture, also horticulture as well. These branches should have district societies. And above all the city Aldermen should have voted $1000 towards the exhibition. Other cities, say Vancouver or Westminster, would gladly have done so, in order to secure the show.

You've all read about the new Duchess of Marlborough and the amount it will take to fix the roof of her new house, and no wonder Blenheim has five good acres of that commodity, but then it is "a house and not a dwelling," as Swift says of it:

See here's a grand approach,
This way for his Grace's coach;
There hes the bridge and there's the clock,
Observe the lion and the cock;
The spacious court, the colonade,
And mind how wide the hall is made;
The chimneys are so well designed
They never smoke in any wind;
The galleries contrived for walking,
The windows to retire and flirt in;
The council chamber to debate,
And all the rest are rooms of state.
"Thanks, sir," cried I, "'tis very fine,
But where d'ye sleep, or where d'ye dine?
I find by all you've been telling,
That 'tis a house, but not a dwelling."

But the great Dean of St. Patrick, like the Major, was a bit sarcastic at times. Unlike him he was a little spiteful. At all events, Mr. Dean had no love for the celebrated Duke of his day, or his wife "Mrs. Marsham" The Duke was a "boodler," and Mrs. Marsham prevented Queen Anne from making him a bishop. Even preachers are spiteful you see.

Some week or so ago the Major called the attention of the post office authorities to the want of letter boxes throughout the city. Vancouver wanted letter boxes last year. The Mayor and Council told the P. O. people so, and the thing was done. What a difference here! But we have no cabinet ministers, their wives, cousins or their aunts who own real estate in Victoria; that's the difference.

THE TOWN MAJOR.

SCOTTISH LITERATURE.

IX. SIR DAVID LYNDSAY.

Sir David Lyndsay, of the Mount, was born about the year 1490, at the paternal seat in the parish of Monimail, Fifeshire. He was educated at the ancient University of St. Andrew's; and he was early employed at the court of James Fourth. Lyndsay became the usher and companion of the young Prince, afterwards James Fifth.

About the year 1529 the King knighted Lyndsay, and appointed him Chief Herald, or Lyon King of Arms. He seems to have possessed talent for public business, as he way employed on commercial missions to Flanders and Denmark, and on various royal messages and embassies. He also represented the burgh of Cupar in parliament for some time. In his latter days he retired to the Mount, his country seat in Fifeshire, where he died in the year 1555.

The writings of Lyndsay abound in racy pictures of the times, and in keen and cutting satire. He lashed the vices of the clergy, and from his public position and the openness of his satire, he advanced the reformed doctrines. He was one of the influential reformers who urged Knox to become a preacher. Sir David was singularly popular with the bulk of his countrymen. His sarcastic lines and shrewd sayings passed into proverbs, and are not yet wholly banished from the firesides of the peasantry. The poet's first production, "The Dreme," was written about the year 1528. This was followed by "The Complaynt to the King," in 1529; and "The Testament and Complaynt of our Soverane Lordis Papyngo," in 1530. These three works consist chiefly of observations on the state and government of the kingdom during two of its minorities. The other principal works of Sir David are: "An Answer to the King's Flyting," 1536; "The Deploration of the of the Death of Queen Magdalene," 1537; "Ane Supplication directit to the King's Grace, in Contemplation of Syde Taillis," 1538; "Kittiis Confession," (a satire on auricular confession) in 1541. "The Tragedie of the Cardinal," (Beeton) 1545; "The Historie and Testament of Squyer William Meldrum," in 1550; and "Ane Pleasant Satyre of the Thrie Estaitis." The last named work is a rude dramatic composition, a satire upon the whole of the three political orders, clergy, nobles and commons, full of humor and grossness, and curiously illustrative of the taste of the times. This satire of the "Three Estates" was acted in presence of the court at Cupar, Linlithgow and Edinburgh, the stage being in the open air.

London, Sept. 18—Sir Ambrose Shea sails to-day returning from the governorship of the Bahamas to that of Newfoundland as was anticipated.

PUGILISTIC POLITICIANS.

Montreal, Sept. 20—A fracas occurred at the court house this afternoon between Vanasse, M. P., and Bourgouin, arising out of the veto meeting last week. The member charged the counsel with being a traiter to the Conservatives and having sold himself to Mercier, whereupon Bourgouin struck Vanasse in the face and landed him in the mud. Friends came up and interfered.

INDEPENDENT ODD FELLOWS.

Halifax, Sept. 21—Some time ago the Odd Fellows of Manchester Unity had some trouble with one of their officers over some funds and expelled him. The case was carried into the courts of law and after it was disposed of the expelled member appealed to the higher authorities of the Order in England to be reinstated. The result of this appeal was in favor of the expelled officer, but the lodge to which he belonged refused to receive him back into membership, and the other lodges of Manchester Unity in the Province stood by it in this decision. In consequence of this the head authorities have suspended all the members of these lodges. The members of Manchester Unity say that they do not care one jot for the action of those nominally at the head of the Order and that they will continue to work as of old, and not trouble themselves over the suspension.

A CHRISTIAN BATTERY.

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 13—Peter Rodenhaur, who barricaded himself in his house last night and, with a Winchester rifle and two shot guns, defied arrest for violation of the fishing laws, has been captured. He is a devout churchgoer, and started this morning to say his prayers at the St. Francis Church. He was armed with his double-barrelled shotgun, but in an unguarded moment he was seized and disarmed. At a preliminary examination he was sent to gaol in default of $5,000 bail.

Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until with a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

three bottles of this medicine I have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Fendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored. CHAPTER XII.

A FACE IN THE GLASS.

Shirley was 22.

For six years she had been teacher of the Linwood school. That was something. But she had adopted other means to help on the fortunes of the Carstone family.

It may or may not be credit to a woman to write for newspapers. It depends on what she writes.

The poem in which Shirley's heart was bound up had to be put aside. At times she wrote brief bits of verse as of old, but not often. There was no money in poetry.

Money the Carstones must have. Shirley wrote short essays and sketches, and got paid for them. So thoroughly were the real and the ideal blended in her nature that her literary work was pointed especially with strong, practical sense. In truth, she caught the ideal and made it the real. That was her way in all things.

She had no extraordinary and romantic difficulties in getting modest newspaper employment. Her power was recognized there from the first. That much in her life at least was easy. But her existence had fallen into such a humdrum rut that she sighed for change day by day. She was the same strong, bright spirit as of old, ever ready for what her hand found to do. But her life seemed to her to be wearing itself out, like a mill wheel that turns around and around in one spot. She felt it sadly.

One morning, at the beginning of her vacation, Percy brought her a letter from the postoffice. It was from the editor of The Morning Herald, for which she wrote. The letter was an answer to her silent thought. It read:

Dear Miss Carstone:

The Psycho-physikothicological association are to hold a three weeks' convention away off in Langham. They meet day after tomorrow. It is found advisable to print a report of their wisdom in The Morning Herald. Will you go to Langham and report the thing for us, and can you start at once?

ED. MORNING HERALD.

P. S.—The State Insane asylum is at Langham. If some of the inside lunatics escape and get mixed with the outside lunes and go to speechmaking, it will make the convention livelier, but the proceedings will not be any more difficult to understand.

To which she answered:

I will go, and I can start at once.

SHIRLEY CARSTONE.

That afternoon she sped away from Chesterton on the wings of steam. It was the first time she had been away from home since the death of her father, six years before. The frettings of her mother, the troublesome, though well beloved children, the wearing, petty cares indoors and out that harrowed her without ceasing at home, were all left behind. Shirley was happy.

Even the music mad young lady, who sat behind her and trilled to herself for sixty miles out, did not annoy her.

She felt like a bird out of a cage. The not being appealed to a hundred times a day, the not having to plan and decide everything for everybody, gave her an elasticity of spirit that she had not known for many a day. She likened herself to Christian in "Pilgrim's Progress" when the load slipped off his back.

She had a sense of freedom about her work, too, that was very grateful. Hitherto what she wrote had to be done in time snatched from her rest, and at odd minutes between other duties. It was what she had been about evenings, when her mother had complained that she did not look after the boys.

Now at Langham she had her time to herself. She had nothing to do but write, except to listen. For Shirley, listening was easy, though it is not so for everybody. She felicitated herself.

She made newer acquaintance. She had a pleasant room on the ground floor of a cottage overlooking a little lake. All was clean and rural and sweet, as Shirley loved to have it.

Her work was not so difficult either, for brain and fingers had been trained to her task.

There was one place where she liked best to write. That was in a corner of the grounds, out under the trees. It was a half hidden nook, where a little table was, and a rustic seat. Hither Shirley hied every afternoon, and put the finishing touches on her manuscripts.

It was midsummer. Sometimes between the tremendous deliberations of the institute and the thermometer the day was very hot. The institute kindly accepted the aid of the thermometer in making things hot. It fell on such an afternoon as this that Shirley wore a pretty white dress out to her favorite corner under the trees. Shirley liked white dresses. As she went she stole a red rose from a bush beside the walk and fastened it in her hair. Our girl was very beautiful.

A gentleman who had strolled out alone in the grounds, and happened to see her sitting there thought so. He was a handsome, distinguished looking man, with brilliant, dark gray eyes. His face was a masterful one. It bore the stamp of thought, experience and intellect.

He saw the lady sitting there, with the white dress, the red rose fastened in her crown of light brown hair. She did not perceive him. She had finished her writing. She threw her arm, the pencil still in her fingers, carelessly along the twisted back of the rustic seat. Her head was raised and turned slightly to one side. The regal pose, the noble profile, the exquisite rose-tinted cheek were very striking.

The man who stood there spell bound, had he ever seen that face and figure, in just such a pose, the white dress, the red rose and the fair hair? Oh, heaven! There came a sudden physical movement about his heart, as if it would break from his breast. He placed his hand against a tree to steady himself. He needed something to hold fast by. And yet it had been six years!

Well, he would not startle her if he could help it. He crackled a dead branch to make some sound, and kept his face half hidden. The lady heard the noise, and looked about. She saw a man's figure and a half face. The man watched her in side glances. The face, the outlines took for her a look of something well known and loved long ago. He turned now and approached her slowly. Once more, as once in the past, the blood forsook her face and settled back around her heart. Then it came again in great waves and surges to her face. The grief, the care, the weariness of six years rolled away as in a cloud, and left her sitting under the trees with a white dress on and a red rose in her hair, and the master leaning over the rustic seat beside her.

A strong, shapely hand touched her extended arm, a pair of starlike eyes looked intensely down once more into hers. Oh! it was the same, that face with the arch smile, half veiled smile she knew so well, the deep, melow voice, calling her as of old, "Shirley!"

The universe seemed whirling around, with her, Shirley Carstone, for its pivotal point. She answered, faintly:

"Mr. Morrison!"

He came and sat down beside her.

She tried to think of something to say. She did say:

"I didn't think you would have known me, Mr. Morrison."

For answer he quoted softly:

"I count myself in nothing else so happy,
As in a soul remembering my good friends."

Then he spoke easily and lightly:

"What in the world are you doing here, Shirley?"

She smiled, with the old gleam of fun in her eyes.

"I am reporting the Psycho-physikethicological institute for The Morning Herald."

"Don't you think you are a little bit crazy?"

"I'm not sure. But if I be I, which I think I be, then I'm sure some of the members of that institution are."

"What do they do?"

"Oh, they go mooning about over the universal everywhere, and grabble after the infinite."

He smiled with amusement. "Can you understand them," he said.

"Well, sometimes I get tangled up between the actuality of the present and the reality of the possible. But that's all a joke compared to the fundamental archetypes of sociology. That's what really floors me, you know. They just pour out their souls upon the fundamental archetypes of sociology."

"Well, don't stop 'em!"

"I don't intend to. But I would like to choke off their blessed souls, now and then, if I could. The fun of it is, they fancy they understand one another. If you outside, vox populi, don't understand, then so much the worse for you!"

He laughed again, but said nothing. It was joy and perfect peace only to be near her, to hear her voice. It seemed to be a relief from embarrassment for her to run on. She asked him:

"Do you mean to say you are not here to attend the Psycho-physikethicological institute?"

He seemed a little confused.

"No, no," he said; "I am only here for two days, on private business. Let me see the report you make, Shirley; how long is it?"

She smiled merrily and held up the bundle of paper she had covered. "How long is it! All day long."

He would not talk of himself. He only said he had been in the west, and had been busy all these years.

"Tell me what has happened in Linwood," he said. "I have not a heard a word from it since I left. I thought you would have been married long ago, Shirley."

She looked at him a little reproachfully; then suddenly, as the thought of all she had lost since he left her came back, a shadow of grief and pain came over her bright, sweet face. She told him of her father's terrible death, of the loss of her fortune, of how she was in his old place as teacher.

I write for newspapers, too," she said, brightening again. "I condense solemn information from agricultural reports for the readers of The Morning Herald. I can tell you to a dot, too, what effect the new dog tax law is going to have on the politics of the state."

"But why do you not write your poems?"

She flushed slightly. "Mother is an invalid," she said. "We need so many things. I must do all I can to get money. I—I have so much to look after. It seems as though I never get time to commence my poem. But I have not given it up, Mr. Morrison. Don't think that."

Her voice quivered a little.

The master read and perceived.

"I see it all," he said sadly. "You are father and mother and bread winner to them all. I never looked for this for you. My dear girl, my poor Shirley."

He stroked her hair softly, and with infinite tenderness.

Mr. Morrison lingered on from day to day. He seemed not to be able to break the light chains that held him there. Yet he appeared restless and ill at ease. He spoke of going from day to day, though he did not go. He was reserved, and kept apart from the rest.

But he hovered about Shirley always, not oppressively, but just enough. He wrote half her reports for her. He had the fine graceful tact, the polished ease of manner of one who knows just what to do in the right place. He knew and met her every little wish, almost before it was formed. He never seemed to be looking for her, but ever his eyes sought hers with messages of courage and sympathy.

Shirley was in a paradise. It was so strangely sweet to her, the lonely girl, to find somebody who thought she needed help and sympathy. It is the doom of those who spend their lives caring for others, that none ever fancy they themselves need to be taken care of.

Little things are much to a woman, very much.

It was the first time since her father died that anybody had looked after Shirley's happiness and comfort. In six years it had occurred to nobody that she had any little wants or wishes of her own. Therefore was this human sympathy unspeakably sweet to her.

The world shaking deliberations of the Psycho-physikethicologians drew to a close. The last afternoon these phosphoric intellects so far forgot their mission as to have a picnic. One blushes to record it. They amused themselves. Many went on boat excursions over the lake.

"Shirley," said Mr. Morrison, "I want you to come with me this evening. This is the last. Wear your white dress, too, and put a rose in your hair. That is how I wish to remember you. I am to have you all to myself this evening, mind."

He led her to the beach and seated her in a little skiff. He took the oars himself. With a few powerful strokes they shot out into the moonlit lake.

"I have found a place along the lake that I want to show you," he said. "I think it will please you."

In half an hour he tied the boat at the shore in the deep hollow of a tiny crescent bay. A cluster of beautiful trees grew there. Near by a brook tumbled over a cliff, and then gathered itself up and went on again into the lake. The summer wind murmured low among the trees. The miniature waterfall murmured back in music. The drops of water made a million white lights in the moonbeams. All was cool and restful.

Shirley clasped her hands with delight. "How lovely! How lovely this is!"

"I thought you would like it," said the master, quietly.

All that afternoon they had been near each other. In company with two or three of the learned lights, they had gone botanizing, picnicking, naturalisting, and the Lord knows what. It had been, in a way, like the vanished days of Linwood, yet different. Yes, there was a difference now.

Little matter was it that they had not been alone. They were happier, perhaps, on that account. The sweet, subtle sympathy that joined them could well be left unspoken. The silver line stretched between them, invisible to all but themselves.

They found a seat beneath the beautiful trees.

Shirley sat in silence, with her hands softly clasped in her lap, and looked out at the water and moonlight.

"This has been the happiest day of my life," said Mr. Morrison, at length.

"And mine, too," replied Shirley, hardly knowing what she said.

He leaned toward her till his head touched the rose in her hair. Was it the wind, or the brook, or what was it that whispered in tones broken and sweet.

"I fight no more against the tide! Shirley, my star, my lily! Oh, how I love you!"

But they were a kingly pair, these two strong, beautiful ones!

Lower and lower the southern moon dipped; its rays shimmered across the waterfall, but they did not heed it. At last he arose with a start.

"Do you know how late it is, Shirley?"

"No," says Shirley, "and I'm afraid to ask."

They entered the tiny boat hastily. The last rays of the southern moon glinted cross the whispering waterfall.

In the cool night silence they went to Shirley's cottage, they two. The swinging lamp yet burned in the porch. They passed in through the hallway.

The room inside was quite deserted. At the threshold Mr. Morrison said good night, with a grave, stately bow. He had taken a step away when Shirley clutched his arm suddenly.

"Look there!" she said.

A face was pressed against the glass outside, staring at them with wild, demoniac eyes. It was waxy white and emaciated. In all her life Shirley never again saw a countenance so frightful, so full of devilish malice as that. She shuddered from head to foot in spite of herself.

An awful look came into George Morrison's face. It was as if the frost of a thousand years had suddenly entered into his soul.

"I will see what it is at once," he said. "It is nothing, don't mind it, Shirley."

He turned and left her with a bound.

An Explanation.

What is this "nervous trouble" with which so many seem now to be afflicted? If you will remember a few years ago the word Malaria was comparatively unknown—to day it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and Malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called Biliousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the Liver which in performing its functions finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, Malaria, Bilious Fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its cures are marvelous. *

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Ice Cream at Steitz's. *

—Oysters and Turtles at Poodle Dog.

—Kurtz's Jubilee Cigars are now ready.

—The infant child of H. H. Roper died on Saturday night.

—Dr. Morrison has removed to Moody's Block, 76 Yates street, up stairs. 1m *

—The Emma Abbott English Opera Company will be the next attraction at the Victoria Theatre.

—Police circles are very quiet at present. A drunk was the only case in the police court this morning.

—Fresh Oysters at the New England Bakery. Delivered to all parts of the city. Telephone No. 161. *

—The tents still make fine Cabinet Photos at $3 to $4 per dozen, and will all this week.

*2t R. H. GARDINER, Manager.

—Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator has no equal for destroying worms in children and adults. See that you get the genuine when purchasing. *

—Malicious individuals broke the handsome window placed in Christ Church Cathedral in memory of the late Mrs. E. B. Marvin.

—Thos. Sabin, of Essington, says: "I have removed ten corns from my feet with Holloway's corn cure." Reader, go thou and do likewise. *

—Mr. F. N. Gisborne, Capt. Devereux and Capt. R. G. Lascelles on the Pong-las-ky for Port San Juan, Beecher Point and Alberni.

—Ross & Ceperley, Real Estate and Insurance. C. P. R. Co.'s lots for sale; correspondence solicited. P. O. Block, Hastings street, Vancouver, B. C. *

—A gentleman who lives in the northern section of the city and on whose head the frosts of fifty winters have left their mark, a few days ago married a young lady of sweet fifteen. The union is likely to prove a very happy one.

—Scrofula, in the blood, corrupts and contaminates every tissue and fiber in the whole body; but whether appearing in the form of swellings, erysipelas, or running sores, the malignant poisons of this disease are completely eradicated by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. *

—Malarial poisons can be entirely removed from the system by the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. This remedy contains a specific, in the form of a vegetable product, used in other Ague preparation. Warranted. *

—The old Beaver is still on the rocks at the entrance of Burrard Inlet. The steamer Adelaide made several efforts Friday and Saturday to tow her off, but was unsuccessful. Mr. H. Saunders, the owner, is certain the steamer can be floated whenever a tug powerful enough can be procured. She has sustained as yet little damage.

—Public Speakers, Actors and Vocalists find, and state that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieves hoarseness and irritation in the throat better than remedies specially advertised to relieve that difficulty. This Oil has a wide scope, since it cures external hurts, corns, sores, frost bite, piles, and a variety of other unhealthy conditions. *

—D. Sullivan, Malcolm, Ontario, writes: "I have been selling Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for some years, and have no hesitation in saying that it has given better satisfaction than any other medicine I have ever sold. I consider it the only patent medicine that cures more than it is recommended to cure." *

—They have a marriage boom down the Sound. An exchange says: It is an open secret in society circles that Mr. K. Clyde Greene will lead Miss May Carlyle to the hymenial altar in November. Mr. Greene is well known as one of the finest artists in kalsomine in our city, while Miss Carlyle is one our most accomplished belles and will fittingly adorn the cozy little flat of two rooms Mr. Greene has already engaged on Whitewash avenue.

—There are Cheap Panaceas for various human ailments continually cropping up. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure has no affinity with any of these. Unlike them, the article is derived from the purest sources, is prepared with the utmost chemical skill, and is a genuine remedy and not a palliative for Biliousness, Constipation, Kidney troubles, impurity of the blood, and female complaints. *

—Mr. R. C. Winlow, Toronto, writes: Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery is a valuable medicine to all who are troubled with indigestion. I tried a bottle of it after suffering for some ten years, and the results are certainly beyond my expectations. It assists digestion wonderfully. I digest my food with no apparent effort, and am now entirely free from that sensation, which every dyspeptic well knows, of unpleasant fulness after each meal. *

Death.

Mrs. Louisa Ellen Josling, wife of the late Captain Josling, Royal Navy, died at Punjab, India, on August 6th. Deceased was eldest daughter of E. E. Langford and sister of Mrs. H. G. Lewis, of James Bay.

Missing Man Found.

A resident of Esquimalt road left his house on Tuesday last and was the cause of considerable anxiety to his family. The police were notified and a thorough search instituted. On Sunday afternoon the missing man returned on the Nanaimo train.

Island Trout.

Fishery Inspector Mowat recommends a close season for trout from the middle of October to the middle of March. Such a law would not be necessary on this Island if the law against fishing with salmon roe was enforced. The lakes are well stocked with fish.

Building Society.

The Board of Directors of the Victoria Building Society met on Saturday evening in Harmony Hall. The first drawing for an appropriation of $2,000 will take place on October 4th. Ex-Mayor Fell was elected President and ex-Coun. W.D. McKillican Vice-President of the Society.

Chicken Thieves.

Residents of James Bay, in the vicinity of Beacon Hill, were awakened on Saturday night by noises around their premises. It is presumed that chicken thieves were at work in the locality. One elderly gentleman was awakened and found his gate open. He sat at the window until daylight nursing a shot gun.

Arbor Day.

The citizens of Vancouver are reminded by the News-Advertiser that Friday October 12 has been proclaimed by the Mayor as Arbor Day, which all are requested to observe by planting trees in or about their lots. Those who intend to do are requested to make arrangements at once for a supply of suitable trees.

Runaway.

At six o'clock on Saturday evening a horse attached to a wagon belonging to the Bavaria Brewery ran away. The animal started on one of the streets across James Bay and was caught by a number of workmen near James Bay bridge. Very little beer was left in the wagon and it is presumed that the horse is a prohibitionist as it is continually running away and upsetting the beer.

The Sound Steamers.

The steamer Potter was to have left Columbia River on Saturday to go on the Victoria-Sound route, and if she succeeded in getting over the bar is on the way round now. The North Pacific is ready for service and is said to be handsomer and speedier than ever. Both the North Pacific and Potter will make better time than the Alaskan and Olympian are making now, as the bottoms of the latter are very dirty.

Winter Carnival.

Montreal is moving in the matter of holding a winter carnival. At a meeting of citizens held last week it was resolved that a committee be appointed from each branch of business to ascertain what amount the members of each are willing to subscribe toward the proposed Carnival Fund, and report at a general meeting. It is estimated that $20,000 will be required. During the carnival two years ago it was believed that 65,000 people visited the city.

Menzies the Martyr.

The petition now being circulated craving the clemency of the Crown in the case of Professor Menzies sentenced to eight months' imprisonment in the common jail, the facts of which are familiar to all, is being liberally signed. The petition is brief, the last clause of which says "that, practically, although the law has been transgressed no personal wrong has been suffered through the act of the said Menzies." Amongst the signers of the petition are Hon. John Robson, M. P. P., Hon. Robt. Dunsmuir, M. P. P., Simeon Duck, M. P. P., Theo. Davie Q. C. M. P. P., Rev. P. McLeod, B. P., Robert E. A. McQuade, E. B. Marvin, T. Lubbe and a large number of others.—Star.

What's the Matter With This?

A subscriber writes: "A friend asks me to multiply five dollars. I do so, and announce the result as twenty-five dollars. All right. Now multiply five hundred cents by five hundred cents, giving the answer in cents pure and simple, not as fractional parts of a dollar. I do so, and am surprised to see the figures climb up 250,000 cents, which is $2500. As five dollars and five hundred cents are equivalent, the result is puzzling. It cannot be urged that decimal marks should be used. A cent, as such, is as distinct a unit as a dollar, and as the result is to be announced in cents, the decimals cannot be pleaded in extenuation of the rather surprising result. But there is clearly something wrong. What is it?"

GATHERING AS IT TRAVELS.

The Views of McKenzie Bowell as Given by an Eastern Paper.

A Calgary paper gives the following, which we reproduce as a curiosity: "Here is a little part of the Hon. McKenzie Bowell's conference with the Board of Trade in Victoria, which the newspapers of that antiquated burgh omitted to to publish. After the Board had given Mr. Bowell lots of advice and suggestions, he said, 'Now gentlemen there is one thing I want to tell you Victorians by which you may profit, you have the dirtiest, filthiest city in the whole Dominion. Your streets are littered with old boxes, straw, rubbish and filth.' You have the worst water imaginable, so thick that it would serve for both meat and drink. You have not got a sewer in the city. Why, he continued, I was in one of your churches Sunday evening and the preacher could not help alluding to these matters, and if the status of your morals is in keeping with your appearances, I do not wonder that he preaches strong. 'Oh said Mr Fell, it was that chap Starr, who never loses an opportunity of launching out about the city.' 'Well, said Minister Bowell,' 'I think he has lots of sand to stand up and preach such hard facts at you folks and I hope it will do you good.' The conference soon adjourned."

SURREY NOTES.

The C P R. Ask for a Right-of-Way —The Harvest.

Surrey, Sept. 21—There was a sitting of the Surrey License Court at the town hall on Saturday, the 15th instant, when a license was applied for by the proprietor of the St. Leonard Hotel, Semiahmoo Bay, which was granted. The building is nearly completed, and will, when ready for the reception of guests, present a very attractive appearance from the beach, and will be the means of inducing many to visit this popular seaside resort.

From all accounts the C. P. R. Co. is busy; they have asked for right-of-way through the city of Blaine, and also for an interest in the townsite, in return for which they offer to locate shops, round houses, etc., in the neighborhood; the real estate owners are inclined to entertain these proposals.

The congregation of the Episcopalian Church at Surrey Centre propose holding a harvest festival early in October.

The late rains have hindered harvesting operations somewhat; quite a number of our farmers have finished threshing and all, without exception, have most bountiful crops; some of them claiming to have threshed out as high as one hundred and forty bushels of oats to the acre; several have threshed one hundred and twenty. Wheat, barley and peas are also very good; potatoes are an excellent crop.

MARRIAGES.

DICKIE-CALVART.

On Saturday evening, Mr. C. H. Dickie of the E & N. Railway, was married to Miss Eliza E. Calvart. The bridesmaids were four sisters of the estimable young lady. Mr. W. Marshall supported the groom. At the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Donald Fraser, M. A., the guests partook of a sumptous repast.

M'MURTIE-WALL.

Another interesting event took place at the Wellington Hotel, Nanaimo, on Thursday evening. Mr. Andrw McMurtie was married to Miss Edna, daughter of Thomas Wall, of the Wellington Hotel. The young couple are well known and respected residents of Nanaimo.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

A Sermon on the Great Problem of Labor and Capital.

The Rev. P. McF. MacLeod discoursed on the above subject last night to a large congregation. He took for his text Gen. 31 and 7: "Thy father Laban hath changed my wages ten times." He pointed out that the relationship between Laban and Jacob as master and servant, and illustrated the difficulties that have arisen in these days between employers and employed. Laban was greedy, tyrannious and selfish, and Jacob met these peculiarities of his master with cunning and selfishness which in the long run gave him the victory. The preacher went on to say that there were many masters of a very different type among us, men who carried their religion into their business and who therefore were never in difficulties with their workmen, but these good masters were unfortunately in the minority. He went on to show how the greed of employers had necessitated again and again the interference of parliament to protect the working men, and instanced the iniquities of the truck system in England, the wrongs perpetrated on women and children working in mines and factories, and the horrors of the sweating system lately revealed by the investigations of a Royal Commission. He instanced the selfishness of many employers, who treated their men as mere machines, and not as fellow-beings. He then gave some interesting examples of a better class of employers, who desired their work people to share in their prosperity, instancing Sir Titus Salt, of Saltaire, the Crossleys of Halifax and others. He then spoke of the employees and showed the strained relationship which wrought disastrously upon both employer and employed. He gave it as his opinion that combinations of workingmen were necessitated by the conduct of the employers, but went on to show that neither unions nor strikes could solve the vexed question. He advocated the application of Christianity to the settlement of labor troubles, showing that these principles lead to a five-day's wage for a four-day's work, a reduction of the hours of labor, the adoption of the Saturday half holiday, and the mutual respect and esteem between employer and employed.

THE ENDERBY MILL.

Purchased by a Victoria Firm—Good Thing for All Concerned.

We are informed, on good authority, that the valuable milling property known as the Enderby Mill—which was built by Messrs. Rasdall & Lawes, and put in operation about a year ago, and subsequently became involved financially—has been purchased by Welch, Rithet & Co., who will operate it in future. This property has been in the hands of assignees for several weeks, and its purchase by such a wealthy and enterprising firm is a cause for very general satisfaction, especially in Spallumcheen, where the property is located. This flour mill is the most valuable property of its kind west of Winnipeg, and its failure to succeed thus far is very generally understood to have been due to a lack of capital on the part of the proprietors. The mill is situated in one of the best wheat growing districts of the province, and within easy access of the railway. In the hands of a firm having such large connections as Welch, Rithet & Co, and who are in a position to secure a market for the manufactured article, the future prosperity of the Enderby mill is assured.

SPORTING NEWS.

BASEBALL.

The baseball match at Beacon Hill, on Saturday afternoon, was won by the James Bays with 17 runs to 11 made by the Maple Leafs. A large number of people witnessed the game which was interesting, although the score was not very creditable to either side. The double umpiring of Messrs. Barnes and Duck was a novel feature of the game. The James Bays will compete with the Maple Leaf's next Saturday. The winning nine will carry off the trophy.

The Amity-Vancouver baseball game is omitted from the Kamloops Sentinel account of the tournament.

FOOTBALL.

The match on Beacon Hill last Saturday afternoon between teams chosen by L. Crease and B. H. T. Drake, resulted in a victory for Mr. Crease's side. At the close of the game the winning side had gained two goals and one try to one goals and three tries.

A cable dispatch says that 10,000 people witnessed the Canadians defeat the Sunderland team by 3 goals to nothing on Saturday.

FOOT RACE.

A race between Arthur Bouillion of Vancouver, and Jack Insley, of Seattle, will take place in the latter city October 20th. It is for $250 a side and the championship of British Columbia and Washington Territory. The distance is three miles. Both are good runners and Insley has never been defeated yet. Bouillon is practicing daily and a very close race may be expected.

Orange Blossoms.

The marriage of Arthur Campbell McCallum, son of Captain A. E. McCallum, of Riverside, Quamichan, and Miss C. K. Hawthornthwaite, daughter of W. H. Hawthornthwaite, J. P., of Woodville, Cowichan, took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The interesting ceremony took place at St. James Church, Niagara Street, Very Rev. Archdeacon Scriven officiating. The bride looked charming in a traveling costume of velvet trimmed with old Limerick lace. Miss E. Hawthornthwaite was bridesmaid and Mr. J. H. Hawthornthwaite supported the groom. The fair bride was given away by her father. The wedding was private and was witnessed by Colonel Stevens, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Hatfield and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties. With their many friends THE TIMES extends congratulations to the happy young couple.

Fulfilment of Prophesy.

This is the way the Toronto Mail puts it: The bad times in New Zealand have induced a number of the colonists to write to British Columbia on the subject of settlement there. If the New Zealanders commence to move east England had better look to the condition of London bridge. We are sorry for our contemporary's knowledge of geography. Were the New Zealanders to commence to move to British Columbia he would move almost due north. Nevertheless he'd be welcome to the Pacific Province, which holds kind remembrances of their Oceanican fellow-citizens.

The Choral Union.

Ladies and gentlemen wishing to form a Victoria Choral Choral with the view to improve themselves in classical music are requested to meet at Walitt's music store at 8 o'clock, Wednesday, the 26th. It is hoped that a large number of music lovers will be present on that evening. Officers will be chosen and the society started on a solid basis.

This Evening.

This evening addresses will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Sutherland and J. J. Maclaren, Esq., Q.C., on the "Political and Economic Aspects of the Temperance Question," in the hall of the Y. M. C. A., Broad street. The chair will be taken at 8 o'clock. The public are cordially invited.

Marine Notes.

A despatch was received by Capt. John Irving on Saturday last announcing the departure of the steamer Islander, Capt. Robertson, from Dumbarton, Scotland, for this port.

Steamer Cariboo Fly will leave to-morrow evening for Skeena River and way ports.

A despatch from Portland states that Capt. Troupe took charge of the steamer Potter on Friday last preparatory to taking her to Puget Sound. The officers and crew who take the boat over will be transferred to the steamer Alaskan and will take that steamer to Portland.

Steamer Maude will leave for Skidegate on Friday next.
